“ I'm so sorry to have missed Henry's funeral, he was such a kind and devoted friend. As the head usher in the church you could always bet that he would be the best dressed man in church. He made sure his duties and those of the other ushers were met with the utmost professionalism following the catholic rituals in all respects. He displayed his faith with sincere obedience and expected the rest of the congregation to love and obey God and the church as much as he did. Always present, we had to know that something terrible had happened when Henry was not at church that fateful Sunday. He was a true and sincere friend that is certainly missed. I pray for his family that they know that he was a truly respected and remarkable man who loved his God, faith, family and friends with no reservations. God bless you all.
